Chapter 1 by Nathan Zilora

The day aliens come, people have two mind sets, "OMG, the aliens are going to share us so much tech, and future stuff!", then the others say "Not today! Aliens are here to rule the world! bring out the nuclear missiles!". So after 7 days of a mother ship floating in space, you know what we get? Narration day.

It was a morning like no other, I had just woken up, but instead of a yawn, this is what I got: Tired, Stan slowly got out of bed, yawning all the while.

Little did I know, this would become the first words of Narration day. Everyone was affected by it, we couldn't talk, we could only speak in narrations, that didn't even tell the truth half the time!

I wen't to my mom's bedroom, and woke her up, and this is what I got:

Stan's mother was very annoyed at at Stan, she wanted to through him out of the house, but despite that, she answered, What is it?

It got worse later through the day the narrations started to explain what people were thinking. This is one example when my tea

As Michel was fooling around for Dave?

The teacher ignored him, but the narrator said:

Mrs.Gordan was very very annoyed at Michel, and wanted to kill him like the little %&#@&# he was. Despite this, Mrs.Gordan pretended Michel was in class 306, away from her.

Though, this is not a story about Mom, or Mrs.Gordan, this is what happed to me on Narration Day.
